Case - Timothy N. Pfeiffer,
Subject - Homicide, New Brunswick, N. J.,
Operative - 312.

312/Gibson

October 30, 1922. Continuing on the above matter, Operative during the early part of the morning remained about the railroad station being unable to gather anything of importance.

Upon leaving the railroad station Operative visited the vicinity of George & Albany Sts, and from there proceeded to the Middlesex Lunchroom. While in the Middlesex Lunchroom Operative overheard several reporters discussing the Hall-Mills Case. The substance of their conversation was to the effect that they in general did not believe Mrs. Gibson's story, and expected it to fall down upon final test. In fact the sentiment amongst the reporters above mentioned, seemed to be entirely in favor of Mrs. Hall.

Upon leaving the Middlesex Lunchroom, Operative next visited the Cut-rate Cigar Store located on Albany St. near George Street, New Brunswick.

While in the last named place Operative heard a man (of the following description, 5 ft, 8 inches in height, of dark complexion, wearing eyeglasses and a dark Derby Hat and Brown Overcoat) remark, "I don't put much stock in that Gibson woman's story, not anymore than if you were to tell me that there was a gold mine in your cellar, I would believe you quicker than I would her story, and I am going to tell you another thing, I think it was a shame the way the reporters acted the other day up at the Court House when Willie came out, they all rushed him in order to get his picture, he further said that he protested against their action." The man went on to say, "I hope to God that Mrs. Hall's name will be cleared."

Upon leaving the above mentioned cigar store Operative boarded an Easton Avenue Car and proceeded in the direction of Phillips Farm.

Upon arrival at the Phillips Farm House, Operative entered in conversation with three women whom he found sitting on the stoop of the house. Operative and the three above mentioned women then went through the Phillips
